SALISES Cave Hill in Review: Academic Year 2017/2018

The academic year recently ended was a mixed one as the Institute's staff moved to prepare for a quality assurance review of SALISES, marking the period 2010-2017. Throughout the first and into the second semester nearly all members of staff had to cope with serious health challenges affecting their close relatives. In July we were saddened to learn of the passing of Rebecca Lashley, wife and life partner of Jonathan Lashley. As with acts of support and solidarity in the preceding months, we in SALISES intend to sustain our research, graduate teaching and outreach functions in an atmosphere of empathetic cooperation and goal-oriented solidarity.

As part of The UWI's effort to enhance its service excellence, The UWI's Quality Assurance Unit conducted a review of the Institute from February 26 – March 10, 2018. The review team conducted interviews with staff, students and other stakeholders in order to make recommendations for the improvement of the services offered. A draft of the Final Report was shared among staff here and other SALISES Units, its recommendations engaged.

The draft report bewildered as well for its reach for anecdotal information, its truth claims that went beyond factual inaccuracies, its charged dialogue of a lack of transparency with respect to budgets and lack of detailed information thereof, the preposterous reference to the quality of graduate research theses and overall tone. SALISES as a collective has since responded to the Report, careful to acknowledge the important value of quality assurance exercises, yet keen to point out weaknesses in methodology, the elevation of impressions, and absence of thoroughness girding several claims.

The research output for the five Fellows at SALISES Cave Hill remained above the threshold of “2 plus” publications, per Fellow, a year. With 12 essays in books and journals and 2 book length manuscripts completed in the first year of the UWI Triple ‘A’ Strategy, the Institute is well on course for exemplary output by the end of academic year 2019/20, marking the first triennium of research standards set for institutes housed under the Vice Chancellery. In terms of breakdown, the printed refereed output comprised 3 journal articles and 3 book chapters; and the work accepted and forthcoming comprised 2 book length manuscripts, 2 journal articles, and 4 book chapters.

Our flagship Journal of the Eastern Caribbean entered into its third year as a triennium publication and one double issue and a single issue were published. The aim remains to produce each issue on time but with a high rate of rejection this remains a challenge. We are currently two issues behind schedule. The solution has been found by way of commissioning several special issues to complement open submissions and thus far the response to such has been encouraging. A special double feature on Gender and Sexuality is nearing completion and plans for special issues on tourism and hospitality services; and Caribbean civil society promise to restore the timeliness of the Journal in the course of the next academic year.

SALISES Graduate output is set to improve with the completion of three doctoral theses and two others in an advanced stage as at July 31, 2018. Jonathan Lashley, Andrew Downes, Corin Bailey, Aldrie Henri-Lee and Don Marshall are supervisors for the students nearing the end of their formal academic journey. For the most part these students are and were part-time registrants in the SALISES research degree programmes and throughput rates are more difficult in circumstances where 90% of SALISES graduate students are full time employees elsewhere. An abiding research culture is also difficult to batten down when we will not see our students except via appointments made during (their) working days. We believe the solution to this is to pursue grant funding linked to research cluster projects that will allow for employ of, and/or the secure of research services by full time graduates. The targeted aim is to convert or remake existing clusters, into collaborative, grant-seeking endeavours in their own right to raise the profile as it internationalizes the Institute.

Our internal administrative processes continue to be a work in progress. Appraisals were undertaken without acrimony and recommendations were shared and collectively owned. In many ways coping with grief and sadness throughout the year meant the exercise of greater initiative by administrative staff, and greater collaboration with respect to our outreach initiatives on the part of research staff.

WORK OF THE INSTITUTE - OUTREACH

SALISES Policy Forum

The Institute hosted a Policy Forum on October 9, 2017 entitled “Barbados at 50” to reveal the findings of the National Values Assessment survey conducted by the Institute on behalf of the Government of Barbados.

Open Day

The Sir Arthur Lewis Institute of Social and Economic Studies (SALISES) participated in the Open Day held on Saturday, November 25, 2017 by displaying its research done and information on its graduate degree programme offered at its Cave Hill branch.

SALISES Developmental Talk Series

“Sustainable Caribbean Futures Challenges of Sovereignty and Fiscal Governance”, December 5, 2017 by Don Marshall and Mark Hill.

Roundtable Discussion

The Institute hosted the SALISES Roundtable Discussion on January 23, 2018 (to coincide with the birthday of Sir W. Arthur Lewis). The theme of the discussion was “Relevance of W. Arthur Lewis Work to the Challenges of Caribbean Development”

Research Days

SALISES Cave Hill took part in exhibited research work done by the Institute during the UWI Research Days 2018 held at the Mona Campus from February 7-9, 2018.

Caribbean Public Policy Symposium

On March 8, 2018, SALISES in conjunction with the Centre for Resource Management and Environmental Studies (CERMES) hosted the Caribbean Public Policy Symposium on the theme “Climate Change and Sustainable Caribbean Livelihoods”

Workshop

On 5 April 2018, SALISES hosted a Writing Policy Briefs Workshop: A Guide for UWI Researchers conducted by Professor Andrew Downes, Professor Emeritus of Economics.

SALISES Annual Conference

The Sir Arthur Lewis Institute of Social and Economic Studies (SALISES) 19th Annual Conference was held over the period April 25–27, 2018 at the Holiday Inn Resort, Montego Bay, Jamaica. The theme of the conference was “Sustainable Futures for the Caribbean: Critical Interventions and the 2030 Agenda”.

Journal of Eastern Caribbean Studies (JECS)

During the academic year two issues of the Journal were printed. Firstly, Volume 41, Nos. 2 & 3 (August & December) 2016 and secondly, Volume 42, No. 1 (April) 2017 which featured the National Values Assessment: Barbados at 50. The Editorial Committee was in the planning stages of producing the JECS being featured online.

Audine Wilkinson Library

The Audine Wilkinson Library continued to reinforce and support the Institute’s mission of undertaking high quality research and graduate teaching in the areas of social and economic development policy, governance and public policy with special reference to small developing countries. During the period under review, staff, students and independent researchers all benefited from this mandate.

In the annual library-planning meeting, there was an agreement to increase the library’s visibility. To achieve this goal, a decision was made to increase the number of displays created by library staff and utilize the display area to hang them. Included would be current and historical people of note, places and events in Barbados.

During this period, the following displays were launched—CARIFESTA, a celebration of Dame Maizie Barker-Welch’s ninetieth birthday, images of Independence and an overview of Barbadian musicians and their genre.

Visitors continue to use the library as a research hub and during this period, approximately fifty (50) persons visited. Thirteen (13) items were sent to the bindery, sixteen (16) items were withdrawn and we subscribed to three (3) new journals.
