

INFORMATION ON CONTRIBUTORS

Olugbenga Akintola is a lecturer in the Department of Educational Management and Business Studies, Olabisi Onabanjo University, Ago-Iwoye, Nigeria. He teaches and conducts research in business and entrepreneurship education. Over the years, he has transversed the fields of Business Development and Marketing Communications with a keen interest in the entrepreneurial creativity of the youth.

Lois George is a lecturer in Mathematics Education in the School of Education at the University of the West Indies, Mona, Jamaica. She is a Commonwealth scholar who has 20 years of work experience in the field of Mathematics Education and School Management. Her main research interest is mathematical cognitive development.

Alhassan Simon Iddrisu is a lecturer in the Faculty of Education, University for Development Studies, Tamale Campus. He has been teaching for over twenty years across various levels of education in Ghana. He holds an MPhil. in Educational Measurement and Evaluation from the University of Cape Coast and a degree in Mathematics Education.

Errol Miller is a prominent Caribbean scholar. He has written and spoken extensively on issues relating to education in the region. He is Professor Emeritus in the School of Education at The University of the West Indies, Mona.

Lemoy Petit-Hunte holds a Ph.D. in Education. Her research interests include inclusive education policy in the Caribbean, formative experiment methodology, teacher education, and reciprocal teaching. She is a literacy coach and has served as a part-time lecturer at the School of Education at the UWI, St. Augustine campus, in the area of Developing Literacy Ability.

Cleveland Sam, a national of St Vincent and the Grenadines, is a former journalist who has made a career as a marketing and communications specialist in education. He recently completed his doctorate in higher education leadership with The UWI Open Campus. His academic interest is articulation and transfer credit issues.

Joan Spencer-Ernandez is a Lecturer in Special Education at the School of Education, UWI, Mona. She has worked extensively throughout the Caribbean as a Consultant to Ministries of Education in several Caribbean countries, and has published primarily in the area of student achievement. Currently, she is the Manager of the Joint Board of Teacher Education.

Mohammed Zuberu is a lecturer in the Faculty of Education, University for Development Studies, Tamale Campus.